Management Development Programme on FOREIGN EXCHANGE MANAGEMENT IN INDIA

24th November 2009
PSG Institute of Management

After the world wars, due to the industrialization and diversification of trading among the countries, the foreign exchange market in the international level has undergone remarkable changes which includes the emergence of Euro currency. Though the problem of foreign exchange is very often highlighted by the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and other international financial organisations, the exchange rates among trading countries often pose to be major destabilizing forces in the management of foreign exchange, domestic inflation, international liquidity and the balance of payments of trading countries. In the light of the above observations, the MDP on "India's foreign exchange management" highlights various problems and prospects of India's foreign exchange reserves and other related issues concerned with Indian Rupee and the currencies of major trading countries of India. This programme will be useful to executives of business organisations and faculty members teaching foreign exchange management.
