About the Program

The HR leaders often find themselves between a rock and a hard place due to increasing uncertainty in businesses. Today the dynamics of the work force that is youth with high aspirations pose challenges for HR Managers. This program offers some valuable insights on how to handle Gen Z and ways to architect the work place to achieve the desired results. It also imparts the knowledge on how to use HR as an instrument of change and how to connect with people to understand their thoughts and get the best out of them to meet their individual as well as the organizational goals.

Program objectives

1. To understand the making of Indian leaders from real life case studies of HR leaders;
2. To learn and comprehend the process used by leaders and to derive competencies and Values from them.
3. To design and conduct leadership development courses and programs in Management schools and industry using recent best seller “Leaders in the Making” by Arvind Agrawal and T. V. Rao
4. To gain insights into crucible experiences of Indian HR leaders and gain lessons for building a leadership bench in corporations.
